5-day Short Course and Seminar, Stellenbosch University:

Monday 14 – Friday 18 August 2017

Venue: STIAS Centre, Stellenbosch University Campus, South Africa

Liquid Bulk
Terminals

Ship
Navigation

*An excellent opportunity either as a technical introduction or update for port engineers or as an introduction to this field for other port disciplines; planners, managers and port users. Interact with experts, practicing professionals, lecturers, peers and students in this exciting field! All are welcome to attend!

The Short Course is presented by international and local experts. Experts from the US Army Corps of Engineers, including Dr Martin Schultz, Katherine Touzinsky and Dr Keith Martin, will present on aspects of ship navigation, vessel traffic and maritime safety. Furthermore, Dr Christoph Burmeister from the Fraunhofer Center for Maritime Logistics and Services in Hamburg, Germany will lecture on navigational risk and safety assessments. Captain Nick Sloane from Sloane Marine will talk on the salvaging of the Costa Concordia in Italy. Captain Ravi Naicker (SA Maritime Safety Authority) will address maritime safety and the prevention and combatting of pollution at sea. An excursion to the ship simulators of the SA Maritime Training Academy in Simon's Town will be undertaken. Case studies on liquid bulk facilities will be presented by leading consulting engineers and contractors.

This short course also forms part of the Post Graduate Programme in Port & Coastal Engineering at the University of Stellenbosch which is sponsored by Transnet National Ports Authority (South Africa).

Participants will be provided with course material (presentations). The course will be presented in English. CPD credits will be awarded for days attended.
